

LINKS Pricing

LINKS pricing includes:

- the full LINKS simulation experience
- the LINKS participant's manual, freely accessible/downloadable via the LINKS website
- access to the LINKS website's resources throughout LINKS events
- remote administration of LINKS by Chapman and Associates (i.e., with 24x7 web browser access to input decisions and retrieve results, there's no software to download/install)
- on-going pre- and within-event support to instructors provided directly by the LINKS author.

The Fine Print: (1) These prices include a maximum number of scheduled "rounds" (months or quarters, depending on the simulation). Based on past experience, most LINKS instructors' events fall within these maximums. Further details about these maximums are provided in a separate document ("LINKS Pricing Supplement"). (2) These prices reflect discounts for early payment (i.e., for students who pay for their LINKS participation before the scheduled completion of the first game run in a LINKS event). Students paying for LINKS after the first scheduled game run do so at the full (non-discounted) prices, which are 25% higher than the discounted prices listed above. (3) These LINKS prices are for class sizes of 12 or more students. Contact Randy Chapman (Chapman@LINKS-simulations.com) to discuss LINKS events involving fewer than 12 students. (4) Each student pays for access/exposure to the LINKS simulation experience, not for a personal "owned" copy of a LINKS participant's manual. Thus, all LINKS students pay the relevant LINKS usage fee and there are no "used LINKS books." (5) Separate pricing exists for LINKS applications in open-enrollment executive education and corporate programs.

Students access a course-specific Chapman and Associates webpage to pay the LINKS usage fee via personal credit card. Students receive an electronic receipt that may be provided to the instructor to verify payment of the LINKS usage fee. In some cases, instructors may prefer to arrange for direct institutional billing and payment of the relevant LINKS usage fees.
